FIRST IMPRESSIONS, OR NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY NATHANIEL P. WILLIS.

Beauties of the Bosphorus—summer palace of the sultan—adventure with an old Turkish woman—the feast of Bairam—the sultan his own butcher—his evil propensities—visit to the mosques—the formidable dervish—Santa Sophia—mosque of Sultan Achmet—traces of christianity.

From this elevated point, the singular effect of a desert commencing from the very streets of the city is still more observable. The compact edge of the metropolis is visible even upon the more rural Bosphorus, not an enclosure or a straggling house venturing to protrude beyond the closely pressed limit. To repeat the figure, it seems, with the prodigious mass of habitations on either shore, as if all the cities of both Europe and Asia were swept to their respective borders, or as if the crowded masses upon the long-extending shores were the deposite of some mighty overflow of the sea.

From Pera commence the numerous villages, separated only by name, which form a fringe of peculiarly light and fantastic architecture to the never-wearing Bosphorus. Within the small limits of your eye, upon that silver link between the two seas, there are fifty valleys and thirty rivers, and an imperial palace on every loveliest spot from the Black Sea to Marmora. The Italians say, "See Naples and die!" but for Naples I would read Stamboul and the Bosphorus.

Descending unwillingly from this enchanting spot, we entered a long glen, closed at the water's edge by the sultan's summer palace, and presence of Beylerbey. Half way down we met a decrepid old woman toiling up the path, and my friend, with a Wordsworthian passion for all things humble and simple, gave her the Turkish good-morrow, and inquired her business at the village. She had been to Stavros to sell ten paras' worth of herbs—about one cent of our currency. He put a small piece of silver into her hand, while, with the still strong habit of Turkish modesty, she employed the other in folding her tattered yashmack so as to conceal her features from the gaze of strangers. She had not expected charity. "What is this for?" she asked, looking at it with some surprise. "To buy bread for your children, mother." "Efendi!" said the poor old creature, her voice trembling, and the tears streaming from her eyes, "My children are all dead! There is no one now between me and Allah!" It was worth a poet's while to live in the east. Like the fairy in the tale, they never open their lips but they "speak pearls."

We took a caïque at the mosque of Sultan Selim, at Beylerbey, and floated slowly past the imperial palace. Five or six eunuchs, with their red caps and long blue dresses, were talking at a high tenor in the court-yard of the harem, and we gazed long and earnestly at the fine lattices above, concealing so many of the picked beauties of the empire. A mandolin, very indifferently strummed in one of the projecting wings, betrayed the employment of some fair Fatima, and there was a single moment when we could see, by the relief of a corner window, the outline of a female figure; but the caïque floated remorselessly on, and our busy imaginations had their own unreal shadows for their reward. As we approached the central facade the polished brazen gates flew open, and a band of thirty musicians came out and ranged themselves on the terrace beneath the palace-windows, announcing, in their first flourish, that Sultan Mahmoud had thrust his fingers into his pilan, and his subjects were at liberty to dine. Not finding their music much to our taste, we ordered the caiques to assist the current a little, and shooting past Stavros, we put across the Strait from the old palace of Shemsheli the vizier, and, in a few minutes, I was once more in my floating home, under the star-spangled banner."

Constantinople was in a blaze last night, with the illumination for the approach of the Turkish feast of Bairam. The minarets were extremely beautiful, their encircling galleries hung with coloured lamps, and illuminated festoons suspended from one to the other. The ships of the fleet were decked also with thousands of lamps, and the effect was exceedingly fine, with the reflection in the Bosphorus, and the waving of the suspended lights in the wind. The sultan celebrates the festa by taking a virgin to his bed, and sacrificing twenty sheep with his own hand. I am told by an intelligent physician here, that this playing the butcher is an every-day business with the "Brother of the Sun," every safe return from a ride, or an excursion in his sultana the caïque, requiring him to cut the throat of his next day's mutton. It may account partly for the excessive cruelty of character attributed to him.

Among other bad traits, Mahmoud is said to be very avaricious. It is related of his youth, that he was permitted occasionally, with his brother, (who was murdered to make room for him on the throne,) to walk out in public on certain days with their governor; and that, upon these occasions, each was entrusted with a purse to be expended in charity. The elder brother soon distributed his piastres, and borrowed of his attendants to continue his charities; while Mahmoud quietly put the purse in his pocket, and added it to his private hoard on his return. It is said, too, that he has a particular passion for upholstery, and, in his frequent change from one serai to another, allows no nail to be driven without his supervision. Add to this a spirit of perverse contradiction, so truculent that none but the most abject flatterers can preserve his favour, and you have a pretty handful of offsets against a character certainly not without some royal qualities.

With one of the Reis Efendi's and one of the Seraskier's officers, followed by four kervasses in the Turkish military dress, and every man a pair of slippers in his pocket, we accompanied the commodore, to-day, on a visit to the principal mosques.

Landing first at Tophana, on the Pera side, we entered the court of the new mosque built by the present sultan, whose elegant exterior of white marble and two freshly-gilded minarets we had admired daily, lying at anchor without sound of the muezzin. The morning prayers were just over, and the retiring Turks looked, with lowering brows, at us, as we pulled of our boots on the sacred threshold.

We entered upon what, but for the high pulpit, I should have taken for rather a superb ball-room. An unencumbered floor carpeted gaily, a small arabesque gallery over the door quite like an orchestra, chandeliers and lamps in great profusion, and walls painted of the brightest and most varied colors, formed an interior rather wanting in the "dim religious light" of a place of worship. We were shuffling round in our slippers from one side to the other, examining the marble Mihrab and the narrow and towering pulpit, when a ragged and decrepit dervish, with his papooses in his hand, and his toes and heels protruding from a very dirty pair of stockings, rose from his prayers and began walking backward and forward, eyeing us ferociously and muttering himself into quite a pass. His charity for infidels was evidently at a low ebb. Every step we took upon the holy floor seemed to add to his fury. The kervasses observed him, but his sugar-loaf cap carried some respect with it, and they evidently did not like to meddle with him. He followed us to the

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1834.

FOR CONGRESS—DISTRICT

No 4—JAMES RUSSELL, of West Cambridge.

No paper will be issued from this Office tomorrow.

Good Morning, Reader!—Thanksgiving is here—but we trust it has not found you without the good things that, of right, “with Thanksgiving come”—nor without an appetite to enjoy them—heart thankful for that enjoyment—and a hand open to relieve the wants of such of your less fortunate neighbors as are destitute of the wherewithal to keep this Yankee Festival, as it ought to be kept. To enjoy yourself reasonably, upon any occasion, is no offence against any law, divine or human—and to do so to-day, is not only the privilege, but the duty of every real, genuine and legitimate Yankee. Indeed, we venture to assert that the man who will not eat, drink and be merry upon such an occasion, is a knave. And now for the proof:—Can a man live in a country like this, without feeling thankful for the numerous blessings of which he is the recipient?—can he live as free as the air he breathes, with all his civil, religious, and political rights secured to him, and not reflect upon the worth of such privileges?—and in reflecting, can he fail to “Burn with love and gratitude to heaven

That made so fair a land, and he its son.”

If, then, he be grateful, will he not show it—if not, then in verity is he not a knave?

But enough of this—a pleasant day, and a good dinner to all who take the Post—and to all who borrow it, a goading conscience, that will not give them rest until they have sent us six dollars in advance, and have our receipt therefor carefully deposited in their pocket.

Negro Voters.—The Boston Gazette is quite sore about the negro voters, and denies that so great a number of them voted as was stated in the Washington letter. We place no reliance on the statement of negro votes which the Gazette gives on the authority of another paper. The Swigs themselves boasted on the day of election that they carried 800 negro votes, and for once we believe them. Negroes who had not been six weeks in Portland, and who were there only as sailors, we are informed, were permitted to vote in that city, and did vote the Whig ticket; and the like facilities may have been permitted here, to eke out their boasted eight hundred. But whatever may be the actual number given we consider quite immaterial. The prominent and important fact is, that the white Whigs formed an alliance with the negroes, that their men attended and assisted in organizing the negro meeting, and their papers published the proceedings, and that the victory achieved was the joint work of the black and white Whigs. These are facts that we desire the white Whigs of the South to note. We also can tell them that the Abolitionists here uniformly belong to the same side in politics. And to show how far the white Whigs are disposed to consort with the negroes, we have the fact that a negro was sent from Portland as a delegate to the Whig Convention at Augusta—took his seat in that body, and was appointed and acted on the Select Committee of that body to nominate Mr Sprague for Governor. We suppose the Gazette may yet deny that any meeting of the negroes was held, or that their proceedings were ever published. We say out upon such injustice towards their darker brethren.

Gov. Davis' Toast.—As we stated yesterday, we were led into an error in ascribing a toast to Gov. Davis, on the authority of the Gazette, which it seems now he did not give. But it was one of the regular sentiments of the company deliberately prepared for the occasion, and for which Gov. Davis must bear his share of the responsibility. Besides this, the whole tone and tenor of Governor Davis' speech was in accordance with this sentiment, filled with mis-statements and with the low and vulgar slang that grace the columns of the Atlas. Here at this Swiggery we see the Governor of the Commonwealth shouting at his own election, traducing his political opponents, and libelling an administration, elected and sustained by a large majority of the American people. We see presiding at these Bacchanalian orgies, a man who deserted the altar, and abandoned the service of God, to seek thrifit and promotion in the service of Mammon. Surely these are spectacles calculated to call forth deep meditation.

Tremont Theatre.—A new play, entitled The Taratar Witch, with new scenery by Bragaldi, will be brought out at this house to-night—after which Gustavus, conceded to be the most splendid scenic drama ever witnessed in this city—to which will be added the amusing and popular farce of The Mummy. The whole making one of the most attractive bills of the season.

At the Warren, Jones's new and popular drama, called Plymouth Rock, which continues to draw excellent houses, together with The Three Hunchbacks, Mr Leicester's Jim Crow, &c. &c. A full bill, and we dare promise an overflowning house.

At the New-England Museum, during the day and evening, all things will be in order, and Mr Greenwood will be happy to see his friends, and treat them with the utmost attention and politeness.

The State Museum has been purchased by Mr Brunswick, and put in complete order. Saubert's Di Cosmo Panorama will be exhibited through the day, and in the evening Mr Pentland will display some rare feats of legerdemain.

Macomber, Welch & Co. will open their splendid Menagerie this morning. Every thing about it will be in good order, and the rare collection of beasts and birds it contains, will attract a numerous company of visitors.

Mr. Dexter, the blind man, whose Omnibus of the Fine Arts still stands in Dock Square, has caught a wandering piper, and will exhibit him in his travelling museum, without any additional charge for entrance.

Mrs Hamlin is about to open the Richmond (Va.) Theatre.

[The Newburyport Twopenny thinks we have an “imaginative genius”—we wish we could return the compliment, by thinking it possessed of genius of any kind.]

Frigate Constellation.—By a slip from the Norfolk Beacon, we learn that the U. S. frigate Constellation, Capt. Read, arrived in Hampton Roads on Thursday, from the Mediterranean.

The Constellation has on board (says the Beacon) several statues for the Halls of Congress, and will, we learn, proceed to Washington.

The U. S. Schr. Shark, Lt. Com. Paulding, was at Malta at the last advices. The Delaware, Commodore Patterson, was expected there from Egypt.—Payments to be made, in all cases, in advance.

A number of the Democratic Republicans of New York city proffered the compliment of a public dinner to the Hon. John M'Keon, member of Congress elect, from that city. The invitation was respectfully declined.

The Merchants and Planters Bank at Augusta (Geo.) is about to re-commence business.

TRIAL OF THE SPANISH PIRATES.

[U. S. Circuit Court, Wednesday, Nov. 26, 1834.]

THE VERDICT OF THE JURY.

The Court was thrown open at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and was instantaneously filled with a dense multitude of citizens, anxious to hear the announcement of the verdict of the Jury, in whose keeping were placed the lives of the twelve prisoners at the bar. From the delusive circumstance that the jury did not make their appearance for a considerable period after the opening of the Hall, an impression that they had come to a conclusion favorable to the prisoners, or, at least, that they could not agree, became very prevalent throughout the assembly; but at half past eleven, the jurors were ushered into court, with the sentence of death so legally and solemnly written on their countenances, as to extinguish, in an instant, the faintest glimmering of hope for the majority of the accused. Judge Story was not present when the jury came in, and a further period of breathless suspense of 15 minutes occurred, till the prisoners' roll and the panel were called. The prisoners were then called, one by one, and the verdict of the jury was declared to each separately, viz:—

CONVICTED.—Don Pedro Gibert (captain); Bernardo de Soto (mate); Francisco Ruiz (carpenter); Manuel Castillo; Manuel Boyga; Angel Garcia, and Juan Montenegro, were found “Guilty.”

ACQUITTED.—Nicola Costa (cabin-boy, white); Antonio Ferrer (cook, colored, tattooed); Domingo de Guzman (S. A. Indian); Juan Antonio Portana (Indian); and Jose Velasquez (white), were found “Not Guilty.”

The Jury, in consequence, as they said, of the “generous and self-sacrificing act of Bernardo de Soto, in saving the crew of the American ship Minerva, requested the Court to present his case to the merciful consideration of the government,” and Judge Story replied, that “it would be done with the greatest pleasure.”

A general expression of applause was manifested by the audience, upon the acquittal of Costa, but it was instantly suppressed by Judge Story, who ordered the officers to bring to the bar, instantly, any one who should again disturb the Court, by any expression of applause or disapprobation.

Captain Gibert remained calm, quiet, and perfectly self-collected throughout the forenoon, and not the least change in his countenance was perceptible when the verdict was interpreted to him. When, after the regular proceedings were over, he inquired of Mr Peyton what the sentence would be, and Mr P. replied “DEATH, of course,” a suppressed smile was barely visible at the corner of his mouth, such as my frequently be witnessed on the lip of a good natured gambler, who, after a long and close-contested game, finds himself looted at last.

Jekyl and Bannister.—The facetious Jekyl, and our old favorite actor, Jack Bannister, dined some time since with the Hon General Phipps, in Park lane, where men of wit and talent oft do congregate, and are most hospitably received by the gallant general. In the evening, on the company retiring to take coffee, they soon descended a spacious staircase, and left Jekyl and Bannister behind, who, being two gouty subjects, paused, and rested by mutual consent on the stairs; when the counsellor, first looking at his own legs, and after a long and close-contested game, finds himself master.—London paper.

Fine Writing.—One night last week a stage-coach took fire on the road to Exeter. In a provincial paper it is stated, that the accident occurred “in consequence of a fugitive passenger dropping his igneous apparatus.”

A Villain's Notion of Honor.—Michael Jones, who was executed a few weeks since for the murder of Tandy, in Virginia—relates, in his “last dying confession,” an anecdote to prove what he calls the “nice sense of honor” of one of his felonious companions.—Having been tried for robbing at Cincinnati, he had pledged his faith to his lawyers that they should be paid as soon as he was discharged and arrived at Louisville; and, in order to be as good as his word, he actually stole the money from his own sister, to discharge the debt to his lawyers.—N. Y. Trans.

Pirates.—The Newport Republican of the 19th inst., in noticing the trial of the thirteen pirates in Boston, states, that twenty six were condemned and executed in that town, July 19th, 1723. They were taken by his Majesty's ship Greyhound, Peter Solgar commander, executed on Gravelly Point, opposite the town, and their bodies buried on the shore of Goat Island, now Fort Wolcott, between high and low water mark.

A severe gale occurred in the Gulph of Mexico on the 16th ult. Besides other disasters attended with less fatal consequences, it is mentioned that the schr Elizabeth, Edwin Clark, master, from Mobile for Tampico, was capsized, and all on board perished, except John Foreman, seaman, of Gloucester, Mass., who was picked up after being 14 hours on a plank, by an English vessel, which arrived at Vera Cruz on the 19th.—N. Y. J. Com.

Powder Mill Explosion.—We regret to learn that some of the buildings attached to the powder mills (supposed the drying room) of Mr Garrick, near Wilmington, Delaware, was destroyed by an explosion of the powder contained therein on Saturday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock. The shock was sensibly felt in Wilmington, and for several miles around.—United States Gazette.

Drought.—The Carlisle (Pa.) Herald of Wednesday mentions that a drought of unusual severity for the season, prevails in the neighborhood. In the upper part of Cumberland county, it appears that many of the farmers have to drive their cattle two and three miles to water, and to haul that necessary article the same distance for domestic purpose.

Up to Friday night, the murderers on the Baltimore and Washington Rail-road had not been arrested. It turns out that but two superintendents were killed.—Mr Callon escaped by an early flight. He was fired at, and the shot killed his dog by his side.

North Carolina.—The Legislature of this State, assembled at Raleigh on the 17th inst., and elected W. D. Morely Speaker of the Senate, and W. I. Alexander, Speaker of the House of Commons, both without opposition.

A British writer in the Quebec Gazette, advocates the construction of a Rail Road, from that city to Portland, in Maine.

THANKSGIVING WEEK!

THE OMNIBUS OF CURIOSITIES, near Faneuil Hall, keeps open with added attraction.

MR DEXTER feels truly grateful to the citizens of this metropolis for their generous patronage and informs them that he has, with great expense, engaged Capt W. S. HUNTER, the celebrated European and American Wandering Piper, for this week.

He has also engaged the best of the Contingents of America and Europe and has been patronized by the Duke of Northumberland, and now wears the badge.

Capt W. S. HUNTER will give a specimen of his unrivaled musical powers on his celebrated Northumberland Pipes, being the only set of the kind in America; together with a number of airs on the beautiful instrument called the Accordion—which melodious sounds are not surpassed by any instrument known.

Capt W. S. H. will accompany his Pipes with several favorite Airs.

Open from 9 A. M. till 9 P. M.

Admittance 12 cents. n26

STATE MUSEUM.—No 221 Washington street, (opposite Franklin street) is this day REOPENED for the reception of visitors, and brilliantly illuminated in the Evening.

Mr DEXTER would inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the above establishment, and that it is his intention to keep the same for a place of Public Recitation, Amusement and Information, and to procure such novelties and attractions as may come to his knowledge, and hopes by keeping up the respectability of the establishment to merit a share of their patronage. He has also the pleasure of informing them, that in addition to the Museum he has effected an arrangement for a few weeks (at a great expense) of
